

Making your money grow

Mr T Ramjeet, this is your Annual Statement as at 5 April 2023, which shows you have already saved £[REDACTED] in the Trust.

This Annual Statement shows you:

- how much money you have in your Pension Account on 5 April 2023
- any payments and growth achieved during the last 12 months
- what income you might get at your Target Retirement Age (TRA)

How your money has changed over the year to 5 April 2023

Take a look, see what's changed and let us know if you notice anything unexpected.

At 5 April 2022, you had	£[REDACTED]
Since then, your Employer has paid in*	£[REDACTED]
You have paid in*	£[REDACTED]
And additional voluntary payments of	£[REDACTED]
You also transferred in	£[REDACTED]
Value of your Pension Account at 5 April 2023	£[REDACTED]
Over the last 12 months, your savings have changed by	[REDACTED]

*References to 'payments' include any payments made on your behalf by giving up some of your salary (Salary Sacrifice or Salary Exchange). As an example, if you paid in £1,000 and your Employer paid in £1,000 over the year, but it was done through Salary Sacrifice, the above figures would show your Employer paid £2,000, and you paid in £0. This is because when you pay in money into your pension this way, it's taken out of your pay before you paid tax and National Insurance on it. So, it's as if your Employer pays it in on your behalf.

If you'd wanted to transfer your savings to another pension scheme on 5 April 2023, we would have transferred £[REDACTED]

Find out more about investments

On the Trust website, you can read our investment strategy, the Chair's statement, our Task Force on Climate-Related Financial Disclosures (TCFD) report, the charges and transaction costs that apply and whether we think they're good value for money, and how they might affect the value of your Pension Account over time. You can also see how we invest your money (if you don't choose your own funds), how money goes in and out of your Pension Account and how to transfer money in from another scheme into your account. Simply visit www.capgeminiukpensiontrust.co.uk/help-and-forms/ and www.capgeminiukpensiontrust.co.uk/help-and-forms/trust-chairs-statement/.

Please note this Statement is prepared for illustrative purposes. It does not confer any right to benefits. All benefits are payable in accordance with the Trust's Trust Deed and Rules and overriding legislation, as amended from time to time (the Rules). If there is an inconsistency between this Statement and the Rules, the Rules will prevail.

What your pension account could be worth on [REDACTED]/20[REDACTED]

At 25/06/2052, your Pension Account could be worth	£ [REDACTED]
In today's money, that account could provide a monthly income* of	£ [REDACTED]
Which would give you an annual income of	£ [REDACTED]

*When we talk about what the income could be worth, we're saying we think you could turn your estimated Pension Account into an income that would be like having a gross monthly income of about £150.00 today. The estimate assumes you don't take a tax-free cash lump sum.

You can use the money in your Pension Account in lots of ways. We're only showing you what you might get if you turned it into an income for life – known as an annuity. Have a look at www.capgeminiukpensiontrust.co.uk/taking-an-income/ for other ways you can use your Pension Account when you retire.

How we've worked these figures out

The amounts shown are estimates only – they're not guaranteed. They're an illustration of the amounts you might expect to receive using some assumptions about the future, such as how much money is paid in, where it's invested, the cost of buying an annuity and inflation. What actually happens will be different to our assumptions, so the amount you have at retirement will be different to these figures, but they can give you an idea of what you could have when you retire. Find more details on the assumptions that we use to work out these figures here: www.capgeminiukpensiontrust.co.uk/understanding-yearly-statements/.

How your Annual Statement helps you work out what you need when you retire

Your statement shows what your Pension Account might be worth when you retire, and what it might give you if you buy an annuity (a secure income for life). But is it enough?

Below are three different retirement income levels, created by the Pension and Lifetime Savings Association. Visit their website: www.retirementlivingstandards.org.uk to find out what each income level gets you and the assumptions they've used. Mortgage, rent or social care costs, as well as other costs such as tax on pension income, may need to be added depending on your own circumstances. These are the approximate figures for a yearly income for single people, or for a couple, living outside London.

For many people, a combination of the full State Pension and joining a workplace retirement plan like the Trust, as well as other savings, could go a long way towards these costs.

How to save more money

Make sure you visit the annual statement pages on the Trust website to find out how you can increase the amount in your Pension Account between now and retirement. Don't forget that if you decide to increase your Target Retirement Age and take your benefits at a later date, your Pension Account has more time to increase (but don't forget that investments can go down as well as up!).

Changes to your Pension Account since 5 April 2023

Since 5 April 2023, the markets may have changed and you may find that when you view your Pension Account, you have more or less money than it shows in the statement. Have a look at the statement pages on the website for more information about how (and why) investments have changed over the past few months. And don't forget to log into your Pension Account for an updated value.

What happens if you die?

If you were to die, we would normally pay the money in your Pension Account at the date of your death, to the person, people or charity you named on your Nomination of Beneficiaries form (at the Trustees' discretion).

To help the Trustees make this decision, it's really important we know who you want to receive the money in your Pension Account in this situation, particularly when your personal circumstances change. Help us by completing, checking or updating your Nomination of Beneficiaries form. Simply log in to your online Pension Account.

If you and/or your Employer pays contributions into the Trust, you may also be entitled to a lump sum life assurance benefit. This is paid separately from the money in your Pension Account and would require a separate Nomination of Beneficiaries form. Ask your Employer for more details.

Don't get scammed out of your savings!

The Pensions Regulator has updated its information on pension scams. You can find this information on their website. You should read this information carefully, particularly if someone contacts you about accessing your retirement savings before age 55. This option is only available in very limited circumstances related to serious ill health and so you should be very wary of firms or individuals offering this option to you. If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is!

If you are thinking about transferring your retirement savings, please read the Financial Conduct Authority's online 'ScamSmart – Avoid investment and pension scams' information. More information on ScamSmart can be found at: www.fca.org.uk/scamsmart. If you want to transfer your money in or out of the Trust, we will follow a process that is likely to involve calls with both our Scams Protection Team and Money Helper.

Many people have lost their life savings due to scams – please be vigilant!

Where you can find more information

When thinking about your retirement plans with the Trust, you are likely to need more information than provided in the annual statement. The Trust Guide, Investment Guide and fund factsheets can help you with your decisions.

Guidance if you're approaching retirement

For help in understanding your choices for retirement income, you can get free and impartial guidance from the government from Pension Wise, under the MoneyHelper hub.

Pension Wise provide guidance for anyone over age 50 who is thinking about how they wish to take their defined contribution (DC) retirement savings (which is what your savings in the Trust are).

If you're not sure what you want to do with your Pension Account when you retire, we have partnered with HUB Financial Solutions, a retirement specialist team who will talk you through your choices, giving you guidance on the different retirement options, so you can decide what's right for you. They cannot give you financial advice.

By phone, they will explain your options at retirement, the important things to consider for each option, and they'll talk you through the next steps. As a member of the Trust, it's free to use and totally impartial. Simply visit www.hubfinancialsolutions.co.uk/npt for more details.

You can also call them directly on 01737 827 978, between 9am – 5pm Monday to Friday. Calls may be monitored or recorded, and call charges may apply.

Financial advice

The Trustees and their Administrators provide your annual statement as general guidance for your retirement planning. They cannot provide you with financial advice. If you want financial advice on pension and other financial planning, we recommend that you contact an Independent Financial Adviser (IFA) who will charge you for this advice. Visit Money Helper for information about choosing an IFA, including links to where you can find one.

Visit our website

Visit the Trust website, where you can find out more about how we work out the figures in your annual statement, more information about investments, how you can increase the amount you could get at retirement, and much more.

Watch your video statement

We've also created a video statement which shows you how much is in your Pension Account. Make sure you log into your Pension Account and view it!
